DIGITAL TRANSFORMATION & INCLUSIVE GROWTH

Digital Transformation in the context of Governance is supposed to bring in a socio-economic change that fosters a higher degree of digital, financial and social inclusion. Since 2014, the Digital India Programme has led this change. This panel reviews the progress made thus far and the road uncovered.

The glass half full perspective sees significant improvements in entitlements, banking and payments and the glass half empty perspective points to poor credit, markets access, development opportunities and gendered exclusion. We have put together some of the brightest experts in this area to discuss and return recommendations on the next steps:

- Access to Entitlements
- Access to Banking and Payments
- Access to Credit
- Access to Markets
- Access to Development Opportunities
- Access to the above for Women
